

56th Annual Dahlia Show

September 3-4, 2022

Marysville, Ohio

Two Dahlia Show Competitors Grow a Flourishing Friendship Over 30 Years

Jason Fairchild and Dick Westfall share their passion for growing perfect floral orbs with all the dazzling colors you can expect from dahlias.

Columbus Monthly, May 2022

Linda and Jeff Laine appeared on Ron Wilson's "In the Garden" radio show on August 20 to promote the Dahlia Show

Peg Van Scyoc and Bill Van Scyoc, pictured, exhibited dahlias in the Greater Columbus Dahlia Society's 55th Annual Dahlia Show in 2021. On average, there are 400 entries in the show in various sizes, colors and shapes. The public is encouraged to attend the event to see the beautiful flowers. Admission is free.

A close-up photograph of a large, multi-petaled dahlia flower. The flower has a dense, rounded shape with many layers of petals. The center of the flower is a bright yellow, which transitions into a soft pink and then a deeper magenta towards the outer edges of the petals. The petals are pointed and have a delicate, almost papery texture. The background is dark and out of focus, showing some green foliage. The lighting is soft, highlighting the intricate details of the flower's structure.
